“Being yourself, being fair, dreaming big and enjoying the journey are what life is all about. When I was spending time at my aunt and uncles farm in my youth, I had no idea that agriculture would be my calling. We are seeing insurmountable advancements in biotechnology and plant science and with that comes huge responsibility as well as opportunity. This is an exciting time for Corteva Agriscience as we have the enthusiasm, fortitude and expertise to make the organization something truly unique. We will enrich the lives of others by providing solutions to agricultural challenges around the world.”

Bryce is an executive member of CropLife Canada and also sits on the board of directors. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics and political science, and throughout his career he has lived in eight communities in four different provinces. His work has allowed him to meet farmers from coast to coast, while mentoring some of the industry’s top stakeholders and managers.

He is an avid reader of economic, political and business leadership books, which he balances with a good dose of fiction just for fun. He is actively involved in his children’s activities and is a minor sports coach for both hockey and baseball. Also a self-proclaimed foodie, Bryce enjoys recreating recipes and sharing meals with family and friends.
