

GREG STOKKE

*Western Canada, Area Leader
Corteva Agriscience™, Agriculture Division of DowDuPont*

As the area leader for Western Canada, Greg is responsible for overseeing all sales planning for Western Canada and ensures Corteva Agriscience™ meets or exceeds these expectations. Greg is part of the Canadian leadership and commercial leadership teams.

Greg began his career with DuPont Pioneer as a District Sales manager for Southern/Eastern Saskatchewan in 2005. In 2008, he became the Western Canada marketing manager. A year later in 2009, he assumed additional responsibility as North America Canola Business Manager, responsible for driving the canola product line in concert with the overall canola marketing strategy, as well as serving as the contact for canola related business in Western Canada. In 2011, Greg became a member of the Canadian Leadership Team. With the establishment of the two commercial units in Canada in 2012, he was appointed Business Director for Western Canada commercial unit. In the fall of 2013, Greg was appointed to the DuPont Canada Leadership team. In 2017, upon the closing of the DowDuPont merger, he became the Western Canada Area Leader.

Greg holds a B.Sc. degree in Agriculture from the University of Saskatchewan and is an accredited member of the Saskatchewan Institute of Agrologists.

He is also actively involved in his community and volunteers as a hockey coach.
